BANK DEPARTMENT

T. R. Bennett, Superintendent, Issues Statement in Connection With Litigation.

The constitutionality of the lay creating the state banking department is not threatened in legal proceedings brought against that department in many parts of the state in connection with the liquidation of state banks which have been closed by order of the department, according to a statement issued Wednesday by T. Mr. Bennett explained that virtual-By all of the litigation results from wage conference of operators and the operation of only one of the statutes, this covering the right of the superintendent to issue executions to enforce stock assessments.

Mr. Bennett said a case is nov pending before the supreme court which, when decided, will affect all the other cases. Should the case be decided adversely to the department remedial legislation by the legislature would be necessary to correct the law

"Let it be remembered that for 30 years prior to the passage of the bank ing act approved August 16, 1919, and effective January 1, 1920, Georgia had no bank legislation, and up to that time depositors had very little protection when an institution failed. Then the law-makers almost unanimously adopted the present banking code for the purpose of having an orderly and equitable liquidation of banks so that depositors could in a measure have some protection. Decision of Court.

Judge John T. Pendleton, in Fulton superior court Wednesday, held that the 1919 banking act is unconstitutional in its provisions to enforce

LEAGUE'S COUNSEL HEATEDLY SCORED

Extreme Limit of Hypocrisy, Says Alabama Senator in Vainly Opposing Passage of Measure.

Washington, April 5 .- By a vete of more than 3 to 1 the house late today passed and sent to the senate a bill authorizing the deportation of aliens convicted in state or federal courts on charges of having violated the narcotic and Volstead acts.

Described by prohibition advocates as a step toward better law enforcement and characterized by Representative Graham, Pennsylvania, ranking republican on the judiciary committee, as "a monstrous piece of legislation," the bill as presented by the immigration committee stood up against all attacks.

A motion to recommit so that the provision relating to conviction in state courts might be eliminated was defeated and the measure was put through, as framed, 222 to 73. Warnings Sounded.

Representative Walsh, republican, Massachusetts, a member of the judiciary committee which wrote the original Volstead act and who offered tutions held by it under article 7 of the motion to recommit, declared he article governing the liquidation of ment law was made too drastic at

Warning was sounded to prohibitionists by many members, including nois, a veteran of the house, that they were going to far, that there was danger of disrupting the whole system of law enforcement and that jurors would be unwilling to convict. those who ought to go to jail if it also meant deportation.

League Is Attacked.

There were many references to the Anti-Saloon league and Wayne B. Wheeler, its general counsel. Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, charged that "the American bootleggers' union" and the league were standing hand in hand and fighting under one banner to get the alien strue these sections in a liberal man- bootlegger out, of business. COMPLETE REWRITING OF TARIFF MEASURE

Washington, April 5 .- The work of ewriting the 100,000 odd rates in the rewriting the 100,000 odd rates in the Fordney tariff bill finally was completed today by senate finance committee republicans. Consideration of the technical administrative features was begun late in the day and Chairman McCumber is hopeful that the bill can be completed by Saturday. The big question remaining before the committee is that of the valuation principle to be written into the measure. The ad valorem rates as now contained in the bill have been calculated on the basis of foreign valuation but whether this would be approved finally remained to be determined.

Forty-five veterans of the world war will be chief operators in the clinic at the Atlanta Southern Dental college during the coming summer, according to an announcement by Dr. R. R. Byrnes, vice dean and superintendent of the college.

These veteras are a part of the 2,000 vocational training students attending various schools, colleges and universities in Atlanta under supervision of the veterans' bureau. All of them are suffering from some disability received while in the service of their country, but under the regulations of the veterans' bureau their ability must in no way interfere with the efficient conduct of their dental work

According to T. E. Whitaker, of According to T. E. Whitaker, of the veterans' bureau, who has charge of the rehabilitation students, these forty-five dental students represent some of the best of all vocational training students, for entrance requirements of the Atlanta Southern are so high that only applicants with excellent education are eligible for admittance to the institution.

Further, according to Mr. Whitaker, dentistry is a profession requiring such a high degree of skill that only those with comparatively minor dissuch a high degree of skill that only those with comparatively minor disabilities can enter into it. For example, a veteran with tuberculosis would, of course, not be permitted to practice dentistry, it is too delicate for a veteran with any more than a trace of nervousness, and of course no one whose hands are in any way disabled can execute the exceeding skilful movements of a trained dentist.

Notwithstanding these exacting con-

Notwithstanding these exacting conditions, declares Mr. Whitaker, the percentage entering into this field is unusually high, a great deal higher than any other profession into which rehabilitation training students are entering, in proportion to the relative numbers in various professions. These forty-five students at the At-

These forty-live students at the At-lanta Southern will receive four years' training at the college. Some of them are just beginning their training, while others have progressed to nearly completion. Thus the clinic will have its usual large number of skilled ex-perts among the students, in addition to the instructors who will supervise to the instructors who will supervise all work. According to Dr. Byrnes the capacity of the clinic during the summer months will be as great as the production of cotton have been depleted to a greater extent within the last two years than in any similar period during the last half-century. The south, like the other agricultural sections of America, is loaded with a tremendous inflated debt incurred for the production of the crops of 1920 and 1921, and this burden alone means the certainty of a short production and a complete change. Two billion, three hundred million dollars is a stupendous sum, and yet this is what the Houston, Texas, April 1.tire cotton belt, I find that the farmers are unable to meet their obligations, are compelled to reduce their standard of living, and to strip their communities of the hundred million dollars is a stupendous sum, and yet this is what the

South on Eve of Era of Great Prosperity, Says Harvie Jordan, Writing From Texas

The farm population shows a marked decrease, especially during the last two years, and the young people, especially, are leaving the farms and taking up their residences in the cities and towns. Negro labor is showing an alarming decrease in the agricul-tural sections, seeking employment in other lines. is to change the old, worn-out, hap-

I do not think it will be exagsouth realize they cannot continue same and that they must place agriculture upon a strictly economical business basis. No longer will they plant in faith, reap in hope and market by accident. Diversified agriculture is a certainty. The producers must secure a price for their products on a level which will enable them to receive cost of production plus a reasonable profit. The fact that the agricultural producers of America and the various lines of industry that extended credits for the production of the crops of 1920 and 1921 are in the same predicament as the people of the south, means the absolute certainty that these conditions are going to be changed for the better, and no section will show a greater change for the better than the south.

For the present year, even with gerating to state that there are thousands of vacant farms throughout the cotton-producing section of America due to these conditions, which are the outgrowth of an un-sound agricultural policy which has been pursued for the last fifty years. After the war between the years. After the war between the states, when the negro was set free, he and his white master were immediately required to enter into a struggle for an existence in competition with each other by the production of cheap products, especially cotton.

The old system has broken down The debacle in prices of farm products since 1920 has wrecked the worn-out shack. The south is either a death struggle or on the ever a new birth, and I am convinced at the latter is the case. We are that the latter is the case. We are on the eve of a new, more prosper ous and greater south.

Must Change System. In conference with leading business men, bankers, merchants and farmers throughout the entire south, I find that people are think-ing as never before. The state-ment was made to me over and over that the old order of things is passing away; that it has served its day and generation. People tell me on all sides: "We need white me on all sides: "We need white immigration; we can never conflic-ue under the old order. It has caused both the negro and white man to pay a fearful penalty." While the world was sick, supplies exceeded demand. Now that the world is returning to health and vigor, demand will exceed supplies, which will mean famine supplies, famine prices and the consumer will pay the penalty. A Rule of Economic HEALTH TALKS Sanity Offered for BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D. Solution of Muscle WHY ARE PIMPLES?

Shoals Problem

Both republican and democratic enators and representatives, comosing the congressional delegation hat visited Muscle Shoals, seem onvinced that it would be a crying hame and an economic blunder to shame and an economic blunder to permit that vast project to be diverted from its original purposes. Senator Norris, chairman of the committee on agriculture of the senate, declared that congress must be "speedly called upon to find a way to provide the funds necessary." He suggests that appropriations of approximately $7,000,000 annually for three years, beginning now, to complete Wilson dam, would be the sensible, economic way to prevent further physical loss due to discontinuance of operations.

Representative Hull and other members of the party are so thoroughly sold on the proposition of immediate development that they contend the government owes it to the people of the United States to proceed instantly. Representative James is frank to say that since visiting Muscle Shoals he has become a convert to the idea of development, whereas formerly he opposed further investment of government funds. These conclusions are merely typical of what is taking place in the minds of the committeemen upon whose final recommembers of the party are so thorteemen upon whose final recom-mendations will hinge action of the congress on Muscle Shoals.

Wednesday's news brought word from Sheffield of a suggestion offered by Victor H. Hanson, publisher of The Birmingham News, looking to reconcillation of the differences existing between the Ford interests and the Alabama Power company and the relative responsibilities of the government to the American people, to Mr. Ford, and to the Alabama Power company with reference to its contract for the Gorgas plant. Here is submitted a rule of reason to the effect that congress should accept the Ford offer, "making it a part of the contract that Mr. Ford assume the government's contract with the lisher of The Birmingham News the contract that Mr. Ford assume the government's contract with the power company, covering the purchase of the Gorgas steam plant." and upon that basis Mr. Ford and the power company, through a fair arbitration, fix a price to be paid the Alabama Power company. The economic advantages of such a settlement are easy to be seen. Both parties to the controversy would be satisfied. Thousands of idle workers would be employed, and millions of dollars put in circulation. The aspirations of the agricultural and industrial interests would be fully industrial interests would be fully achieved. Mr. Hanson outlines a basis for settlement between the power company and Mr. Ford: The Gorgas steam plant cost, under war time construction, approximately $4,400,000, and probably could be duplicated today for about 60 per cent of its original cost. This would make its present worth about $2,500,000. This amount the Alabama Power company would pay over to Mr. Ford and the Alabama Power company would own the Gorgas steam plant. If the Alabama Power company the detected to avail themselves of their option to buy the Gorgas steam plant from Mr. Ford, then Mr. Ford could take the money so received and construct a new steam power plant, at some strategical point of his own selection.

On the other hand, if the Alabama Power ompany did not care to avail themselved company did not care to avail themselves of their option to buy the Gorgas steam plant, then Mr. Ford would own it and have it available at all times for operation during low water on the Tennessee. In either event, I am reasonably sure that the Alabama Power company would willingly enter into a contract at a fair and reasonable price with Mr. Ford to supply him with all the current necessary for construction purposes pending the completion of Wilson dam and the generation of his own current.

a condition attached to his contract with the government. I believe he is sincere in his desire to get control of and develop this great industrial situation. It is the consensus of opinion of those I have talked to that he is in dead earnest. He has gone so far as to say he will go the full limit of his ability and resources to gain control of Muscle Shoals. It seems clear to me that the other minor objections to Mr. Ford's offer can be adjusted readily, with the Gorgas steam plant problem solved. At least there is food for thought in the plan and I earnestly hope this suggestion will help the committees in solving the problem and finding a way to permit Henry Ford to bring about the greatest industrial development of all times.

Such a solution of the vexed quesa condition attached to his contract with

Such a solution of the vexed ques tion of keeping Gorgas plant de tached from the Muscle Shoals property seems calculated to bring about a just settlement, satisfying both to Mr. Ford and to the power company, which contends that its contract with the government is perfectly valid. And whether settlement be made with Mr. Ford or with the government, through the instrumentality of a fair board of arbitration, this suggestion of an equitable compromise seems to bear the seeds of peace.

Meanwhile, to leave the whole tached from the Muscle Shoals prop-

Associations Formed. Associations weer organized or re-organized in LaGrange, Ga., Tavares, Fla., Arcadia, Fla., Lanet, Ala., Grif-fin, Ga., in Miami, Orlando, Quincy and Pensacola. In Miami there were as many as ten volunteer big brothers and sisters to assist Judge W. H. Penny, president of the local association, and judge of the juvenile court for the count. At Pensacola nineteen volunteers. There were a large number of probation orficers and assistants chosen in various other cities and towns in six southern states.

The secretary reported that approximately 6,500 printed reports and juvenile court folders were distributed. In addition there were 8,583 letters written in the interest of the

Fifty children were handled directly by the officers and workers of the Juvenile Protective association, and there were reported "by the agencies which we helped to set afoot, and the control of agencies which we helped to set afoot, and by our appointees and personal efforts, 10,776 children," previously held down by various weights and handicaps, and a general average of 83 per cent of the number were satisfactorily placed or showed marked improvement in different ways during the period covered by the report.

A number of very interesting cases were cited in the secretary's report, by Judge M. Henry Cohen, of Tampa, and others. Strong letters of commendation of the Juvenile Protective association and its general secretary, ertson's added duties-thus making

Why isn't this the day to step up

Winter's going—or gone, Better days are here. How about yourself? Feeling as fit as you ought to feel? Feeling in tune with Spring?

Food makes a lot of difference. Heavy food can make heavy bodies and heavy thoughts.

There's real, natural, healthful efficiency in Grape-Nuts. Splendid taste, easy digestion, wellrounded nourishment. Try it!

Leave off heavy breakfasts and lunches for a while and enjoy Grape-Nuts with cream or milk (perhaps with a little fresh or preserved fruit added). See if the step isn't lighter, the brain clearer, the will stronger—with the impulse that comes from better, friendlier food.

Nothing more appetizing for breakfast or lunch—and ready to serve in an instant Its very crispness is a delight.

It's time to feel better and be better.

Miss Dean Becomes Bride Of Joel Chandler Harris, Jr.

Gainesville, Ga., April 5.—(Special)
A beautiful marriage of wide interest was solemnized Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock at Hillcrest, the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dean, in Gainesville, when Miss Dorothy Cooke Dean, their heautiful young daughter, and their heautiful young daughter, and soms, which also sprayed the entire their beautiful young daughter, and Joel Chandler Harris. Jr., were married in the presence of several hundred guests. Rev. T. R. Kendall, Jr., pastor of the First Methodist church, mider the direction of Miss Claude Law, an aunt of the bride, in the sitting room and sunparlor ferms and varicolored snapdragons gave a spring-like air. The colonial stairway in the long, wide hall, was entwined with smilax and spring flowers.

The altar was improvised in the north parlor in front of the high colonial mantel. The arch was a mass of smilax and Easter lilies with pedestals on either side supporting two lovely old brass candelabra with cut glass pendants that have been used in the bride's family for four generations. The two lower pedetals marking the approach to the altar held baskets of Easter lilies.

The atble in the dining room was covered with Venetian point lace, a gift from Miss Dean to her mother on her return last summer from Europe. The central decoration of the table was a three-tier bride's cake, richly embossed in designs of roses and valley lilies and surmounted with cunids. The cake rested on a bed of Ophelia roses, these same roses filling four white baskets tied with pink tulle on the table. The bonbons were in rose composes topped with little point lace but terflies bought by the bride in Venice.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Watkins announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Florence Garner, to Frank J. Malone. of Jacksonville, Fla., formerly of Atlanta. The marriage will take place in June with wedding plans to be an-dred guests. Rev. T. R. Kendall, Jr., pastor of the First Methodist church, officiated, using the ring ceremony. Mr. Rogers sang Schubert's Serenade with violin obligato, played by Mrs. H. J. Pearce. The wedding marches were played by Miss Pierpont Brown, with violin accompaniment, played by Mrs. Pearce, Mrs. Woodcock and Miss Gratlan, of Brenau college.

Beautiful Decorations.

Hillcrest, the family home of the Deans, crowning an eminence overlooking valleys all abloom with spring flowers, and one of the most beautiful estates in Georgia, was thrown open for the occasion with that cordial southern hospitality that has endeared the Deans to many friends. The spacious grounds, filled with rare shrubbery and old-fashioned southern flowers, were well lighted, making the approach to the home very beautiful bringing out with striking effect the wisteria vine, weighted with blooms, that covers the wide verandas and colonial pillars that cross the front of the house.

and there is comparative peace and harmory. But I do not think these are common. In the cases I have known it has either been where people were people of extraordinary strong and sweet characters or where one of the generations was willing to absolutely give up and efface itself for the happiness of the other. (You can guess which it usually was.) the two generations lived in perfect harmony so long as each had his or her home, as a castle, but where joined forces brought dissension and unnappiness. In one case the son-inlaw was very fond of his mother-inlaw until she came to live with them. She lived with them three years and before she died he had absolutely refused to speak to her.

Trouble Inevitable Again I know a mother and daughter who really love each other as much as any two I know. They lived in neighboring towns and had a beautiful time with each other. Then the mother moved away and they had to gay each other lengthy visits and never were those visits half over before trouble developed. The children scratched grandma's furniture, she couldn't stand the noise they made, she couldn't see why they weren't trained to have better table manners, etc. On her part, the daughter could not stand the constant interference and the russing if the children moved a chair out of its place. And in the daughter's home other but similar grievances developed. Simply because each was a strong personality and with the situation complicated with a third generation and the whole of them hived up in one house, troude was icevitable.

Of Course It Can Be Done Graciously. Mind you, I do not say the thing cannot be done and done with a minimum of friction if it has got to be done. If all bring strength of character, a wish to be just and to respect each other's rights and to work things out on a fair basis, to the situation, it can be handled with no more complications than are always inevitable in this business of living. But I do think that if each generation can have its own home that is the happisolution, even if neither has as grand a one as they could have together

Patricia Loring, a modern flapper, who resents the fact that Gilbert is madly in love with Sally, as she wants him for herself. With Sally she goes to a house-party at Gilbert's country place, and is there when revenue officers appear to arrest Gilbert on a charge of bootlegging on a big scale, and because one of his men has killed an officer during a fight. Gilbert flees into the night, taking Sally with him, and tries to kidnap her, but she is rescued by Neal Calhoun, who is trailing Gilbert, Gilbert accuses Saily of betraying him to Calhoun and vows vengeance. He is imprisoned but escapes. Sally goes with Barbara Lane and her husband, Andrew, to a house-party at the Randalls. At the country club there she meets Gilbert, who goes under an assumed name, and is looking for her. Neal Calboun rescues her when Keith Kilbert is captured. Returning home, Sally finds that her bark account is overdrawn, her rent over-due, her lease expired and that her mother-in-law has gone to Europe and so cannot help her. She decides to go to work. She assumes the name of Mrs.

CHAPTER XLVI-A RAY OF LIGHT.

Sally had been sure that she would ever return to the Adams agency or pay any attention to a summons from it, but as the days dragged by and the boarding house grew less and less attractive, she began to feel so de-pendent that she longed to hear from the woman who had told her that her own name was not a suitable reference because of the gossip about her.

"I'm no lonlier than lots of girls who come to New York to earn their livings," she told herself, disgusted

Sally hurried to report to the em-cooks.

She still flushed hotly when she remembered the way in which the woman at the agency had said, "Mrs. Bra brant's name would hardly do." She wondered if other people had heard the same idle gossip that had come to this

"But it wasn't my fault—I didn't know anything; I didn't let him do anything but kiss my hand!" she told herself. Hundreds of women indulged in flirtations more serious than hers with Keith Gilbert, and nobody thought anything about it. Was she to be branded forever by her own one again. It was ten days after she registered It was ten days after she registered with the agency that a phone call came for her from the woman with whom she had registered. There was an opening that Mrs. Pemberton might fill—would she come in at once? Sally dressed hastily, her hands trembling with excitement; she had not been so critical of her own appearance since the night when she dressed for her first engagement with Gilbert. It was a far different costume that she donned today—yet the tume that she donned today—yet the trim suit, the dark straw hat and white blouse were as becoming as the flame-colored evening gown had been "I told you that we might have a position calling for just your qualifi-cations." Mrs. Adams told her when she arrived at the agency. "But I really hadn't hoped that anything would turn up so soon as this. It's really excellent. A girl of 17, who has just been graduated from finish-ing school here in the east, wants to stay here and spend the summer a stay here and spend the summer at some of the big resorts. Her people live in the west, and—well, frankly, I imagine that they don't feel quite up to launching the daughter socially, and are looking for someone who can do it. They have a great deal of money, made within the last few years. But they don't quite know. years. But they don't quite know what to do with this girl. So they're looking for a woman of breeding who will take her in hand—someone who has had the training that you have had, and who can marry this girl off, if possible—the mother told me so quite frankly.

"I thought of you at once, of course. It's a good position—you'll receive your expenses and a salary of $100 a month. If you find a husband for the daughter there'll be something in the nature of a bonus, I understand. the nature of a bonus, I understand. You would pay your commission to the agency out of your first month's salary. And if you think favorably of this, you can see Mrs. Finch and her daughter—toe girl's name is Claire—tomorrow at the Plaza."

Sally started at her without speaking. One hundred dollars a month—

But it seemed like closing the last door that lay between her and her old life, that life whose happiness she had

The Gown of Grecian Line Has Been Seen Here and There Among the New French Clothes, But It Is Not

Don't be misled by your admiration for Grecian costumery into thinking that you can adopt the most classic of the frocks that some of the French designers have created. It may be that you are the one woman in five hundred who can dress like a Diana.

But if you are not, beware. There is certainly danger in the Grecian.
Following the French revolution, when women, catching the desire of the hour to throw off the shackles of the eighteenth century artistically went back to Greece for their styles in clothes, they found that the mat-ter of taking over classic costumery was not quite so simple a matter as they had thought. They found, as we may now find, that they them-selves were not Grecian. The modi-fication of Grecian costumery to suit

BEDSPREAD WISDOM.

There is a lot in the way you n sage your bedspreads. You can a character to a room or take character from a room by this simple lipiece of furnishing.

Of course, to some persons nottever takes the place of the immanate white bedspread. It has a I to be said in its defense, too. It is so easily kept clean, and in its very whiteness and smoothness it lookartistic and inviting.

But when one comes to colschemes, there are many things to I said in favor of the colored bedspread. In the chintz-hung room a chints apread is always good. It may be finished around the edge with rick rack braid, in white or color, or it may be finished with narrow ball fringe. Sometimes a sort of slip may be finished with narrow bal fringe. Sometimes a sort of sli covers made for the top and bottom of the bed of the same chintz. Some times a curtain of the chintz is humat the top of the bed to give a further splash of color. Moreover, if the bed is old and shabby, this is a good treatment.

Striped bedspreads are in vogue at the moment. They may be had ipprinted cotton fabrics and in won stripes as well. Moreover, you m stripe your own spread by applying strips of one color on a foundation canother.

Of course, too, there are heavy scrim and linen canvas spreads, sometimes with lace insets and edges, sometimes with cross-stitch designs worked in colored cotton or silk. These may be made to harmonize with the curtains the color being predominant in the outside curtains of chintz or other fabric. In the case of the embroidered scrim curtains the colored netwould be in one of the colors used in the embroidery.

Are You Interested In Possessing A Genuine Oriental Rug?

The largest collection in the entire South is here for your selection—and at prices lower than ever known before.

The value of a good Oriental Rug enhances with each passing year, just as does the value of any other genuine work of art.

It is much more than just a rug. It is a true expression of the traditional and inherited genius of the artist. He has patiently, lovingly woven into it the beautiful thoughts and color-blendings of his dreams. Months, often years, are devoted to his skillful processes.

To possess a rug or a carpet of such making is to possess a treasure. Its worth grows. Its beauty increases. Its charm is not withered with age, nor does usage stale its infinite variety of excellencies.

Rugs of this type are becoming more and more scarce. If one can afford treasures, it would be well to buy genuine Eastern Rugs such as these.

A native expert in the making and handling of Oriental Rugs is in charge of the department-Mr. Philobosin. He is at your service with information, with accurate facts, with the rich merchandise of his land, well authenticated and reliable.

Annual Reports Read At D. A. R. Convention

The report of Mrs. Max E. Land, of Cordele, regent of the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution, presented to the convention here today, was an interesting and comprehensive review of the D. A. R. activities within the past year. It showed that twelve new chapters had been organized during Mrs. Land's regency and that the scope and influence of the association work had been greatly broadened.

Among the important accomplishments was the raising of the $5,000 war memorial fund, which recently was presented to the state university, at Athens, as a scholarship fund for patriotic education.

The presentation of this fund through the Elijah Clarke chapter at Athens was one of the year's big Credentials Committee.

The report of the credentials committee at the opening session today showed ninety-four accredited delegates. The report of Mrs. George M. Hope, state treasurer, was a revelation to the meeting, not only in the splendid financial condition of the state association, but in the amount of money handled. The association is in better financial condition today than eyer before.

"As I am a young mother of one baby, I am writing for free booklet to 'expectant mothers.' I used only two bottles of Mother's Friend before I was confined and had a quick and easy time through labor. I can recommend Mother's Friend to all expectant mothers. I will never go through pregnancy without it."

You, too, can have this booklet for expectant mothers by sending coupon below.

It goes into the features of maternity and gives, in a plain, interest-ing manner, information about what the mother needs in clothing before baby is born; what clothing will be necessary for the baby; an interesting table as to the probable date of delivery; simple but necessary and helpful rules of hygiene to follow, and much other worth-while infor mation. Next Week, "Once to Every Man," by Larry Evans.

When McNulty came to himself once when McNulty came to himself once more he sat up suddenly with one hand clapped to his aching forehead and the other grasping his friend's shoulder. "Pete, come out of it! We've been trapped, do you hear? We're locked up in some musty old tarn, heaven knows where. How the devil did we get here?"

That was only an extra precaution following—yesterday—morning.

"That's very good of him. I'm "That was only an extra precaution which he took," McNulty observed consolingly. "He would have got us, anyway, on that glass-strewn stretch of roadway. I didn't notice him particularly in the telegraph office. I just got a general impression of a man with gray hair and his cap pulled down over his eyes, but it was his voice that I remembered."

"Jim!" Peter's voice shook. "Do you realize what you have just said?—A man with gray hair and his cap pulled down low over his eyes, but it was his voice that I remembered."

"Mey Gray Horizontal Companies of the commented ironically. "I presume that I am no longer detained witness." McNulty's tone was very grave. "Charles Moberley accompanied you to the establishment and left with you, but there is an interim of more than an hour and a half during which he seems to have disappeared."

"That is an abominable lie!" Montie exclaimed, his face suddenly white. "We separated and I joined a crowd who were playing red dog with the doc himself, while Charlie went over to play roulette at a table toward the other end of the room.

result over there a spigot?"

Peter turend eagerly, crawled to the object indicated and with some difficulty turned the handle. A small stream of water spurted out and speedily turned to a clear, steady flow. McNulty staggered to his feet and over to his friend, and both men trank spidly. laying their heads and drank avidly, laving their heads and

"Gad, I feel like a new man!" the detective remarked. "Now we've got to get out of this hole somehow and all-fired quick, too!"

But the door resisted all their attacks on it and the round window was protected with strong iron bars.

"I don't think that wheever put us here will come until night, but if we wait till they do, we'll be lost" Mc-Nulty said slowly. "There is just one possible way that we might be able to break out, but it means taking your life in your hands, Pete."

"What are you driving at, Jim?"
"I propose to burn our way out!"
When as large a space as possible had been clear of straw before the window, the detective turned on the spirot and with his hands deflected the spigot and with his hands deflected the water to the floor and the pile of straw. When the latter was thor-oughly saturated, he held his coat beeath the stream until it was a mere wise. Then he took up a handful of straw which had remained dry, lighted it and held it to the wooden rim of the window. With the second rim of the window. With the second handful the wood caught, and Peter, with his soaking coat, helped to keep the flames from creeping too far out of their prescribed course. Both men worked feverishly, desperately, while the fire ate deeper and deeper into the seasoned old wood, stealing in a crimson circle about the window.

son circle about the window.
"Wet your coat again!" cried McNulty. "Then slop it around the edge of the window while I wet mine. The hole's big enough now, if we can put the fire out and start it again from the floor so that we can wrench the bars loose. Hurry!"

"Peter obeyed, but they were compelled to work furiously. Their coats were of no avail, and, casting them momentarily aside, they dashed water from their cupped hands on the walls. All at once McNulty turned and plashed water upon his legs and body. Picking up a feed box, he deliberately leaned over the blaze and rammed jt with all his might against the bars in the veranda of the Moberley house. Two hollow-eyed, famished young men abandoned it there and rushed up the steps. After having a bath and lunch, and devil did we get here?"

"Holy Mike!" Peter struggled to a sitting posture. "Is there anybody around?"

"I haven't heard anything except a grove of rats overhead." McNulty replied grimly. "You don't suppose that whoever drugged us brought us in here to keep us from catching cold, though do you? We are in what looks like a box stall to me, and although I haven't tried it yet, that sliding door over there has a pretty solid appearance. There isn't any other opening except that little round window."

Peter groaned. "The whole thing was my fault for falling asleep in front of that telegraph office and giving that scoundrel a chance to slash our tires!"

"That was only an extra precaution"

In the allotted space of time the operative entered the library with Russell in tow and found Sergeant McNulty alone. When the operative had withdrawn, McNulty turned blandly to the young man. "Sit down, Mr. Russell. You may be interested in knowing that I have just had the captain of the vice squad at headquarters on the wire. He's been watching Rundell's gambling place for some time on a private tip that it was going full blast once more with Doc I willis in charge, and yesterday I advised the captain to close in on him. They pulled off a raid last night and steed to slown at beadquarters now, swearing to an affidavit that you were playing red dog in the establishment shortly, after 9 o'clock on Wednesday evening and until a quarter to one the following—yesterday—morning. In the allotted space of time the

him the whole evening from where I sat."

There was a lengthy pause while the two gazed at each other in startled speculation. Then McNulty rose determinedly and reeled over to the door, but only to fall against it and slump to the floor.

"I'd give something," he said, "for a long, cold drink of water; that would pull us together quicker than anything in startled said."

"But you did not. The croupier has testified that he watched the game for only a few minutes and then strolled away, while the cashier is positive that he did not buy checks until a couple of hours later."

"Is the testimony of a professional croupier to be taken against mine, to croupler to be taken against mine, to say nothing of the cashier—!" "Until it has been proven false," interrupted McNulty calmly. "You have practically perjured yourself already in concocting a fake alibi for Charles Moberley—"

Charles Moberley—"
"Let them swear!" Montie retorted doggedly. "I'll do a little swearing myself. I shall not utter another word on the subject until you or your chief wish me to put it in the form of an affidavit."

McNulty rang, and, when the obstinate witness had accompanied Franck from the room, the detective proceeded to the servants' sitting room. As he

from the room, the detective proceeded to the servants' sitting room. As he had expected, he found Agnes there alone, mending kitchen towels.

"Who is the man you have been meeting lately and talking with at the corner of the wall where the hydrangeas are?" McNulty shot the question suddenly at her, and the linen which she had been hemming dropped to the floor.

"Who told you that I had been meeting anybody, sir?" A sharp touch of color outlined her cheekbones.

"That is beside the point," the detective retorted with a note of sternness in his tones. "I have proof that "You have met him more than once at that corner of the wall," McNulty observed. "Was it by appointment?"

"Oh, no, sir! Never!" "Then how do you know when he omes?" the detective demanded quickly.

"Well, he is kind of sorry for Ben Duncan and gave him a bag of candy once. I was cleaning Mr. Moberley's sitting room that day and it just happened that I looked out of the window and saw Mr. Cenklin walking up and down. Ben's awful stupid, sir, but he never forgets his storage, and every never forgets his stomach, and every afternoon since he has watched that corner to see if the nice man will come and give him some more candy. He saw him there Wednesday and ran in and told me."

She stooped, nicked up her work and threaded a needle with steady fingers. After a few more perfunctory questions McNulty left her and was starting for the side door which led out into the grounds when the insistent ringing of the telephone in the library reached his ears. The flames were now leaping hungrily to the very roof of the bar and dense clouds of black smoke billowed top. Peter would have stood there drinking in the scene, but his companion seized him and dragged him away into the place where they had left their automobile, but it was gone.

After one glance at the place where their car had rested. MoNulty began vanging back and forth in the underbrush between the dirch and the line of trees. At last he dived into a patch of briers and brought forth two limptires, which he began to examine care fully. He threw one aside and took up the second, but his fingers had scarcely penetrated one of the rents in it than a smile broke over his face and he drew out a folded oblong paner. "Got it!" he announced. "I hid hat anonymous letter that came to headquarters in bere. "I remember this locality now that (see it in the daylight," said Peter, "for I've driven over it more than once, and I think there is a garage in willing a back along this road."

It was almost noon when Peter, driving a rickety Trushled to a stop, turned the car about and opened the door of the tonneau. A scorched figure drated from the trees at the roadside, and dived into the car. So it was that, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, a battered car pounded up the driveway and stopped before

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

THE DIRECT CURRENT GENERATOR. One of the most important uses of the direct current generator is in the circuit of the arc generator, where it is used as a source of electrical energy in connection with the generation and transmission of sustained electro-magnetic waves which oscillate with continuous amplitude. Lesson No. 7 explained how alternating current was generated and delivered to an external circuit or load through the contact of brushes with the surface of collector rings attached to the terminals of a coil revolving in a magnetic field of constant strength. Due to the fact that each brush makes continuous contact with the same end of the coil, the alternations of the current induced in the coil are transferred to the external circuit. In the direct current generator, however, the collector rings are replaced by a commutator consisting of copper segments by means of which each brush is connected first with one end and then with the other end of the revolving coil, this change in connection being made at the instant the current in the coil is reversing with the result that the current flows through the external circuit always in the same

gram: Assume that at any given instant the current induced in the coil (CD) is flowing as shown by the arrows from side (C) through segment (A) Sparta, Ga., April 5.—(Special.)—
A teachers' institute for the instruction of Sunday school teachers of the Baptist church will be held in the Sparta Baptist church from April 16 to April 20 by Dr. E. J. Forrester and Rev. George Andrews, of Atlanta.

There will be two sessions of the institute each day. Following the afternoon session each day those attending will be the guests of the ladies of the Sparta Baptist church at dinners served in the church.

THEATTERS to brush (E) and thence as the current in (C) changes to the opposite direction the brush (E) will come in contact with the segment (B). The current in (D), however, reversed at the same instant as in (C) so that it flows through segment (B), brush

(E) and the external circuit in the same direction as before. By means of the commutator, therefore, the current is always delivered to the external load in the same direction. In the direct current generator of commercial uses the single coil shown in the elementary diagram is replaced by many coils wound on an armature core, the magnetic poles (N) and (S) are replaced by several pairs of field poles and owing to the large number of armature coils the copper segments forming the commutator are greatly increased in number, varying from 50 to 150 segments, depending upon the construction of the generator.

FINDS PEACETIME BROADCASTING TAME

BY MAURICE G. ROSENWALD. To a former navy wireless operator the evening programs from the broadcasting stations sound like old stuff, in that during his usual four-hour watches aboard ship during the war he watches aboard ship during the war he had nothing to do but listen for press from Poldhu, England; Nauen, Germany and Arlington. Someone of the three was in action most of the time. Nauen, especially, used up all the vacant space she could get in the ether. Arlington and Poldhu usually broadcasted after 11 p. m., and this matter was all conied, errors in transmission was all copied, errors in transmisison included, and, after being read by the captain, was usually posted at the scuttle-butt for the enlightenment of

But there is a great difference in the atmosphere of receiving messages. In the nights of the war the operator sat with his ears glued to receivers in a sound-proof room, to reach which the visitor on dutybound must needs pass through two other rooms, in each of which, as he opened the door, the lights automatically went out.

Ready for Calls.

No smoking. No going below for coffee. No unnecessary conversation. A radio striker with his ear to the voice tube connected with the captain's cabin on the bridge jumps at the call to bring the originals of the press to the captain's cabin.

Taking press was wearisome. Usu-

"S O S—S O S—All allied men-ofwar and merchant vessels, steamer Harry Luckenbach torpedoed five miles southwest Penmarsh."

But today: Dinner over, disness all washed. Father hooks up his radio set, puts on his slippers, lights his pipe, opens his Globe to see "Who we have with us tonight," and says: "Let's go!"

"Cappy Ricks."

If things have not been going right this week in business go down to the Forsyth theater, where the Forsyth Players are presenting this week "Cappy Ricks."

This play abounds with funny situations and is bubbling over at all times with that much sought after microbe known as the "joy bug." It seems as though "Cappy Ricks" was written especially for the tired business man or housewife, and it never fails to send audiences out of the theater where it is showing without that smile of satisfaction on their faces.

For next week Clara Joel, the nopular leading lady of the Forsyth Players, is going to reveal another side of her superb versatility at the Forsyth theater when the Forsyth players will produce DeWitt Newing's famous love romance of China called "The Love of Su Shong." (At the Forsyth.)

Lillian "Billie" Dove, the Ziegfeld Follies star, who is to make a personal appearance at Loew's Grand theater next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, was considered last season the most beautiful girl in Broadway musical comedy. Today she is one of the most beautiful girls in pictures. But she needed more than beauty to make her a star. There are hundreds of pretty girls who will never get out of the chorus. Miss Dove combined with her beauty a rare intelligence, brain and ability to act.

She was Ziegfelds' prize in "Sally" at the New. Amsterdam theater, when selected last fail to play a part in "Get Rich Quick Wallingford." She was a nit, and then William Christy Cabanne selected her to star in "At the Stage Door." which was shown here. This picture is one that stirs up the greatest of emotions in your mind, that you have experienced from a screen play for many a long day. News, Views And Reviews

BY DOREMUS, DANIEL & CO.

Sellers tested the market with poor success in the early hours and their failure to bring on furthet recessions materially alterered sentiment, until by early afternoon the general list was in full swing again.

Studebaker remains persistently strong, and it is a purchase on even small setbacks.

We see no reason to change bullish opinions previously expressed on Baldwin and would not care to be on the selling side in Mexican Petroleum. We believe that the ralls safely can be bought, particularly the eastern trunk lines.

Favorable factors include report of expected induction in aBnk of England rate, a further sizeable exe orders from the rall-roads and the weekly trade review showing big increases in steel bookings. In fact, traders who would like a big reaction must constantly contend with constructive news factors which find rather enthusiastic receptions.

J. S. Bache & Co.—If these rains do not continue too strenuous they will be advantageous and we do not believe sufficient cause for a permanent advance, and therefore, advise taking profits.

By A. A. Hausman & Co.—Trading in cotton today was of a mixed character and only moderate in volume with demand and offerings pretty well belanced. Prices averaged a little lower, particularly the new crop months, because the map was better and a belief that yesterday's Texas rains would be of ultimate benefit, although planting will be delayed a couple of weeks, where the precipitation was heaviest. The weekly wenther will be regarded as about a stand-off. Cables were better and Rhode Island mills are apparently gaining in the strike. Speculation awaits further new crop developments.

CORN AND WHEAT

Chicago, April 5 .- Prospective lib-Chicago, April 5.—Prospective liberal shipments of wheat to Chicago from Omaha and other primary markets did a good deal today to bring about a material decline in wheat prices here. The close was unsettled at 1-4 to 23-8c net lower, with May $1.297-8 to $1.30 and July $1.181-8 to $1.181-4. shipments in view from Kansas City and elsewhere, it was generally as-sumed by wheat traders that deliveries on May contracts in Chicago would be much larger than had heretofore seemed probable. Throughout the session the effect was to increase selling pressure on May and eventually to weaken July and September, although at first the late months showed gains on account of some uncer-tainty over crop conditions in parts of the winter wheat territory.

Washington, April 5 .- Heavy rains in the central and western portions of the cotton belt delayed farm work and but little cotton was planted during the last week in those sections ing the last week in those sections, the government's weekly weather and crop review, issued today, said:

Planting is backward in Texas, the review said, and little or none has as yet been seeded in the lower Mississippi valley. Conditions were more favorable in the Atlantic coast states, and planting made good progress in Following are prices quoted by wholesalers Bureau of Markets, State Capitel, Atlanta, Georgia: | Georgia: | DAIRY PRODUCTS AND POULTRY. | Eggs, fresh, candled, per dozen. | 23 | Friers, live, per pound. | 45 | Hens, live, per pound. | 15 | Hens, live, per pound. | 15 | Ducks, live, per pound. | 25 | Geese, live, per pound. | 15 | Turkeys, live, per pound. | 40 | Cheese, full cream, per pound. | 24 | Butter, creamery, ³/₄s. | 44 | Butter, choice | 30 | Butter, cooking | 20 | favorable in the Atlantic coast states, and planting made good progress in that area. This work has been finished in parts of Florida, and the early cotton planted is up to a good stand in southern Georgia. Planting was extended during the week to central North Carolina and southeastern North Carolina, which is somewhat earlier than the average season.

Excessive rains were unfavorable for early planted corn in west gulf districts, the review said, and considerable replanting was necessary. Corn erable replanting was necessary. Corn planting is well advanced as far north as central and southern Oklahoma in the west, but this work is much later than the normal date in more eastern districts, due to unfavorable soil conditions. ditions.

Truck crops have been seriously damaged in southern Florida by dry weather, says the report, and some harm has been done in Arkansas by the frost of April 1 and heavy rains necessitated replanting in the lower Mississippi valley. Otherwise the week was mostly favorable for truck crops.

Early fruit trees were reported in bloom northward to Maryland, and the southern portions of Indiana and Illinois. Apples are blooming in Tennessee and North Carolina. Peaches are setting well in Georgia, and are mostly in good condition North Car-olina. Frost damage to fruit during the week was negligible.

FINANCE---

Executive wanted to help finance a manufacturing business. This is an exceptional proposition, and I am looking for the exceptional man (i. e.) the successful one, who cannot only command capital, but who can also make it earn dividends. The business is doing $200,000 annually and the products show 100% gross profit. The possibilities for expansion and net profits are limited only by working capital and requisite ability to handle the financial policy. In reply state fully as to your qualifications and past record, give reference as to responsibility, as I have no positions to sell non-producers, and I am too busy to bother with the curious.

New York, April 5.—Liberty issues again were the foremost features of the bond market today. The 3½s at 99.08, and the second 4½s at 99.08, established new high records, others of that series closing at gains.

In general, trading in government offerings, as well as rails and industrials slowed down. Exceptions were made by Scaboard Air Line, St. Louis and San Francisco, The reactionary course of Mexicans contributed largely to the uncertain tone of the foreign group, although United Kingdoms, French municipals and Swiss and Japanese governments were firm to strong. Mexicans recovered later and Brazil Sa rose 1½. Sugar and copper bonds reflected the better prices for stocks of those descriptions.

STOCKS CLOSE ACTIVE AND STRONG

New York, April 5 .- Stocks were little more than steady at the outset of today's session, firm but dull during the intermediate period, and active and strong in the final hour under the impetus of a broad inquiry for standard rails and equipments. shorts covering urgently.

Further liquidation for profits accounted for the uncertain tone of the morning, although several of the speculative favorites then registered new maximums for the year, notably oils, motors and shippings.

Coalers led the belated demand for rails, New York, Ontario and Western, Lehigh Valley, Reading and Chesapeake and Ohio scoring advances of 1 to 3 points. The rise of these issues was noteworthy from the fact that early rumors in the financial district touched upon a possible suspentrict touched upon a possible suspension of operations at steel centers be-cause of the coal strike.

Oils were the dominant features of the early trading, especially secondary issues, but motors, sugars, coppers, rubbers and shippings continued to reflect a large professional following. Equipments came forward with the rails and steels were carried upward by the movement, especially United States and Crucible. These, with States and Crucible. These, with American and Baldwin Locomotive. Cast Iron Pipe, Westinghouse, Gen-eral Electric, Studebaker, Chandler. eral Electric, Studebaker, Chandler, Utah Copper and American Smelting constituted the chief issues of strength. closing at gains of one to almost Money conditions eased, all the day's call loans being made at 41-2 per cent, with freer offerings of 30 to 90-day funds. Brokers reported fewer long-time loans, however, for which the recent 43-4 per cent rate again prevailed.

Baldwin and Chandler Stocks at New Highs

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, April 5.-This was another million-share day on the stock exchange, with new high records for the year being made in Baldwin, Vanadium, Allied Chemical, Chandler, New York Air Brake, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Royal Dutch and a number of other, shares. For fifty shares another new high record for the year was made. However, the market as a whole was not as active or as broad as yesterday or Monday.

There are two ways of telling whether or not the public is in the stock market, one through inquiries at commission houses in general, the other through inquiries at houses specializing in odd lots. Houses in both classes, especially the one last named, reported today in answer to direct questions that for the past two months their business had been gradually increasing. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that while the stock market had had a substantial advance stocks were still held in strong hands, the public interest as yet not being large enough to create technical weakness.

Steel trade enters the second quarter of the year under conditions pointing strongly to continuance of improvement in output and prices that has been so pronounced since early March, The Iron Axe says today in its weekly review. The steel corporation is running at slightly over 70 per cent of capacity, with the independents slightly under 70, it is reported, with the indications that this output can be continued for at least several weeks. Railrand and structural buying has improved with orders in other lines now taking a wider range. Jobbers have begun to stock up. Inquiries are in the market for 300 locomotives, with the freight cars already ordered, 34,000, or one-half more than for the whole of 1921. The foregoing figures for freight cars do not include orders for 19,000 cars placed, or about to be placed, by the New York Central. It is understood that Standard Steel Car will get 5,500, American Car. & Foundry 5,500, Pressed Steel Car 3,000, Pullman 2,500, American Tank Car 200, Ralston Steel Car 500. It is also understood that bids were asked some time ago, or when prices for steel were considerably lower.

on the cumulative 5 per cent preferred stock for four months and 1 per cent on account of back dividends.

Remington Typewriter reports for 1921 earnings of $939,000 against $3,340,000 for 1920. Inventory adjustments were $3,165,000 against $1,313,000. With the preferred dividends concern the first public offering of German bonds in this country since the $1,313,000. With the preferred dividend cut from $764,000 in 1920 to $1,91,000 last year there was a final deficit for 1921 of $3,041,000 against a surplus for 1920 of $814,000. The profit and loss surplus is now $3,343,000 against $0,884,000 a year ago.

New companies with capitalization of $100,000 or more formed in March numbered 937 with total capitalization of $100,000 or more formed in March 2281,000,000 the low mark of last July, and with $934,000,000 in March of 1921.

Agree to Cut.

Union workers in men's clothing at Chicago numbering 40,000 have agreed to a 10 per cent cut in wages with modifications in working rules looking toward greater efficiency. Leaders of the striking New England textile workers have yielded on the closed shop question agreeing to negotiate with that point omitted.

Wall street believes that the invitation just sent out by congress to representatives of coal operators and miners to attend a conference for the purpose of adjusting the wage question were sent because such a request was made directly or indirectly by the mine leaders. The feeling here is that congress had better keep its hands off as the government decided to do after an investigation by Sec-

IS FORECASTED.

London, April 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The British government has addressed a note to the allies declaring that, owing to the fact that Great Britain has to pay the interest on her debts to the United States she reserves to herself the right to call upon the allies in turn to pay the interest on their war debts to Great Britain.

In this connection it is pointed out that Great Britain is now fully prepared to pay the interest due the United States.

The three-year agreement between Great Britain and the United States lapses May 15, from which time interest on the debt due by Great Britain is to the United States begins to accrue, so that Great Britain will pay six months' interest the coming fall.

FRENCH REPLY IS FORECASTED.

Paris, April 5.—The French reply to the British note concerning interest on war loans by England is likely to be that the Question is bound up with that of the inter-allied debts, which must be dealt with as a whole, says the Echo de Paris, quoting a well-informed source. Piecemeal payment will only hamper the settlement, the reply will say.

The British note concerning interest on war loans by England is likely to be that the question is bound up with that of the inter-sellied debts, which must be dealt with as a whole, says the Echo de Paris, quoting a well-informed source. Piecemeal payment will only hamper the settlement, the reply will say.

The British communication notified France that the three years' convention expiring at an early date would not be renewed.

The understanding in French official circles has been that the whole question of the inter-allied debts will only hamper the settlement, the reply will say.

Washington, April 5.—President Harding's opinion on the question of disposing of the government's properties at Muscle Shoals, Ala., to private interests under the proposals now before congress for decision was sought today by Representative Kahn, of California, chairman of the house military committee. The conference was held at the white house while the senate agriculture committee, in session at the capitol, voted in favor of appropriating $7,500,000 for the continuance of construction work on the Wilson dam, beginning July 1, and members of that body prepared to inaugurate hearings Monday on the four proposals involving lease, purchase, completion and operation of the shoals projects by private enterprise. Chairman Kahn said the president regarded the question of disposal of Muscle Shoals as one for congress to determine rather than the executive branch of the government. The pre-Muscle Shoals as one for congress to determine rather than the executive branch of the government. The proposal to create a committee composed of representatives of three executive departments, empowered to sell, lease or make other arrangements for future maintnance of the properties, recently advocated by Mr. Kahn, failed to receive the president's approval, it was said.

Objection to the committee plan it

Objection to the committee plan, it was explained, were based principally on the desire for congressional dis-cussion which would dispose finally of the Muscle Shoals problems without reference to the executive authorities,

In Dead Earnest

San Francisco, April 5.—Patience, learned on the movie lots, aided Roscoe Arbuckle Wednesday in the tedious "retake" of his story of how Virginia Rappe was taken ill at his Labor day party.

In an effort to clear himself of the manufaculter, charge against him as the brisk side remarks that featured his first appearance on the stand. He did not ask the prosecution, in cross-examination, to "put on another record" when questions were repeated time and again. He was "camecawise" to courtroom procedure. He was playing to a difficult audience an audience that has everything to say as to whether he will ever throw another custard pie.

Technique Perfect.

His witness chair technique was de-clared perfect. He is a much im-proved courtroom actor. No smiles, no jokes, no boredom. Just business. He was dressed in a natty spring suit. His hair was slicked back. He has lost at least one chin since last September, but his face is still the ruddy, tull face so well-known on the screen.

All preliminary questions were answered in a clear, steady voice; each word carefully enunciated and with special attention to the fact that the jury must hear.

Then his attorneys let him tell his story. Arbuckle told it like a schoolmaster, taking great care that each point was well understood. Two or three times he rose from his chair and illustrated points. Only this time he illustrated points. Only this time he did not try for the actor's meed—a laugh—by asking Judge Louderback to serve as the instrument to illustrate how he carried Virginia Rappe to the bed. He never muffed a cue

"The Chattahoochee is a different kind of a river," declared Mr. Hall. "It is a water power stream with steep grades, granite bedrock and valleys of varying width, with occa-sional shut-ins and narrows between the hills, all of which characteristics lend themselves to flood control by the means here proposed.

"Widening the narrows and clearing out the trees and brush in the flood valley immediately below West Point will make a better outlet, while a dam and storage basin above West Point will hold back or detain part of the water that comes down the river at times of maximum flood, dis-tributing this maximum flow over a longer period. This will actually decrease the quantity passing the city as a maximum in cubic feet per sec-

ENTIRE NAVY WARNED AGAINST AGITATORS

Washington, April 5.—Secretary Deuby served blunt warning today on officers and men of the navy to guard themselves "ashore and afloat from the preaching of sovietism, commun ism and anarchy," through a special order to the entire service waich declared that no lenience would be shown to men who "committed acts of disloyalty."

The order arose, Mr. Denby said, from the fact that his attention had been called to a "sinister propaganda by sailors having their origin in foreign countries to undermine the morale of the navy and to insinuate into its personnel elements of disloyalty and disorder."

"I have the most profound confidence in the loyalty and devotion to the country of the commissioned and enlisted men of the United States navy forces," the order continued. "I have no fear that men in any considerable number may at any time, anywhere, be seduced from their allegiance to their country's flag.

"I fear only that some few of our men may be seduced innocently at first, when on shore, to join societies having for their purpose the advancement of ideas contrary to our form of government or which may result in lawlessness.

"I am trying by this warning to

"I am trying by this warning to save a few individuals wno might otherwise affiliate themselves with societies seeking those things which cannot be tolerated in an organization sworn to uphold the constitution of the United States and obey all lawful orders. Should there be such men in the navy today it is elypset conin the navy today, it is almost cer-tain that if they do not dicentangle themselves from affiliation with such organizations, they will ultimately be detected."

AGAIN TO GATHER ON FAMOUS FIELD

Gettysburg, Pa., April 5 .- Civil was veterans have started a movement for the celebration of the sixtieth anniver-sary of the battle of Gettysburg with another great reunion here in July, 1923. The local grand army post, sponsor for the movement, has been assured the co-operation of the chamber of commerce and business men's organizations in an effort to obtain federal and state aid in financing the project and getting a military display worthy of the occasion.

While the ranks of the Blue and

Gray have been considerably thinned since the reunion here in 1913, when fifty-six thousand men from the North and the South were under canvas, it is believed that the proposed celebration would receive the enthustiastic support of the surviving veterans.
